DESCRIPTION

From Marcel Proust to Roland Barthes, from Émile Zola to Georges Poulet, the work of Honoré de Balzac has generated innumerable readings: countless playwrights, novelists, critics, poets, philosophers, journalists and scholars from both the 19th and 20th centuries have published their Balzac, their interpretation of the Human Comedy, defending, each time, a given set of critical and intellectual criteria (and lexicon), historical (and often historicized) point of views, not to mention moral values, in short: a reading methodology for the father of the French realist novel. This course will invite students to analyze some of the key moments in the reception and understanding of the Balzacian novel: studies of founding texts written by, namely, Alain, Auerbach, Barbéris, Barthes, Bordas, Butor, Castex, Condé, Dallenbach, Danger, Falconer, Genette, Mitterand, Richard, Proust and Zola, will allow students to examine both different methodological approaches of the literary text and competing views of Balzac's world. In addition to a course-pack containing the critical texts, students will also read four of Balzac best known novels and short stories (please see below the list of mandatory readings).

OBJECTIVES

- From the examples taken in Balzac studies, discover, learn and discuss different theoretical approaches of the literary text.
- Read and discuss both orally and in writing five novels by Honoré de Balzac, the “father” of the modern realist novel and one of 19th Century’s greatest writers.
- Increase the student’s skill level for textual analysis, close reading and for literary analysis.
- Solidify the student’s overall research skills.

- Solid knowledge of the fundamentals of literary analysis learned in 300 and 400 level courses
- Solid knowledge of the fundamentals of literary history learned in 300 and 400 level courses
