Some Ground Rules

Communication: Students are encouraged to see the TA and me during our office hours with any questions concerning the course material. If the students cannot come to our office hours and still need to see us, we can set up an individual appointment.

Late assignments: Assignments must be handed in on the due date at the beginning of class. Late assignments will be penalized by a deduction of 10 percent of the full marks per calendar day past the due date. An extension of the deadline will only be granted at the instructor's discretion if the students can present a legitimate and documented reason for why the deadline has been missed, for instance in case of illness or family circumstances.

Missed exams: Students will receive a grade of 0 (zero) for a missed midterm or a final exam, unless they can provide a legitimate and documented excuse. Valid reasons for missing a test include birth, death, marriage, or serious illness or injury applying to you or a member of your immediate family. If there is a valid reason for missing the midterm, the instructor may transfer the percentage weight of the midterm to the final exam, which will then count for 70% of the course grade. There will be no make-up midterm. A deferred final exam can only be granted by the Dean.

Plagiarism and cheating: Homework assignments, the midterm and the final exam should all be the students' own individual work and written by the students in their own words. Exactly the same answers (especially in the assignments) are considered to be plagiarism. During the exams, the use of notes, books, articles, electronic devices or any other aids is not permitted. Carefully read the definition of plagiarism and academic misconduct below.

Student advising: For any questions regarding the linguistics major or minor, the organization of your program, or the selection of courses, you can see the linguistics undergraduate adviser:

Plagiarism and Academic Misconduct

Plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course, when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- c) the whole work (e.g. an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
- d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted. Some course assignments call for students to work in groups. Unless noted otherwise in writing, students must write up their own answers for submission of the assignment. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism.

Plagiarism is an extremely serious academic offence. Possible penalties for plagiarism include: failing the assignment, failing the course, disciplinary probation, suspension, or expulsion.

Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of plagiarism is also guilty of academic misconduct.

Disability Accommodation

It is the student's responsibility to request academic accommodations. If you are a student with a documented disability who may require academic accommodation and have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre, please contact their office at 220-8237. Students who have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre are not eligible for formal academic accommodation. You are also required to discuss your needs with your instructor no later than fourteen (14) days after the start of this course.
