DESCRIPTION

This course takes a deeper look at the principles on Minimalist Syntax, including more advanced topics in the analysis of Ellipsis, A'-Movement, and Binding Theory. There is a greater emphasis on reading primary literature, and exposure to data from languages other than English.

OBJECTIVES

Students should be more familiar with the concepts of derivational timing and the use of overarching rules of the Minimalist Theory as motivation for a given analysis. Students will also begin to look critically at the style of argumentation presented in the reading, learning to contrast between an argument proceeding from empirical facts to a theoretical conclusion, versus an argument based in theoretical assumptions with empirical facts used as post hoc support.

OUTCOMES

Students will have greater facility in abstract argumentation key to primary syntax literature, as well as a deeper understanding of the overall theory. Students will be required to write a final paper of greater depth than the 401 course, with more of an emphasis on the construction of an argument, building on the mechanics of paper writing developed in the earlier class. Presentation skills are also developed, along with the ability to engage in "on your feet" thinking through seminar-style discussion.

DISTRIBUTION OF GRADES

Problem Sets 40% (5 x 5%)
Presentation 10%
Abstract 10%
Final Paper 30%
Class Participation 10%

NOTE THERE IS NO FINAL EXAM FOR THIS COURSE

REQUIRED TEXTS

Hornstein, Norbert; J. Nuñez; and K. Grohmann. 2005. Understanding Minimalism. Cambridge University Press.

Additional papers will be uploaded to D2L.

COURSE NOTES

All homework should be typed, though hand-drawn trees will be permitted. Pictures of trees will not be accepted as part of your assignments. Please use the Scan-to-Me feature on the campus printers if you need to generate electronic copies of trees.

Policies with respect to missed due dates/midterms are discussed in the course syllabus posted on D2L.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:
a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);
b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted." Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students' examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.

DISABILITIES AND ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services office at 403-210-6019 or access@ucalgary.ca; SAS will process the request and

WRITING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM

Writing skills should cross all disciplines. Students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their courses and, where appropriate, instructors can and should use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by the Writing Centre in the Effective Writing Office (<http://www.efwr.ucalgary.ca/>) can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance.
