COURSE OUTLINE

INSTRUCTOR'S NAME: Elizabeth Ritter

E-MAIL: ritter@ucalgary.ca

OFFICE HOURS: By appointment – ritter@ucalgary.ca

NOTE: I will respond to e-mails by the end of the next business day

DESCRIPTION: This course explores recent developments in Minimalist Syntax and other generative approaches, based on both textbook and primary literature. The goals are to develop familiarity with some central issues, as well as the knowledge and skills needed to carry out original research. The course will consist of lectures and exercises based on the required text and material from the primary literature, as well as student presentations and discussion of ideas and analyses

OBJECTIVES: The goals of this course are to expand student's knowledge the generative syntactic theory as developed within the Minimalist framework, its history, and its application to a broad array of issues, as well as to hone their analytical, argumentation and critical skills. The course also aims to develop students' professional oral and written communication skills.

OUTCOMES: Students will gain a deeper knowledge of Minimalist Syntax, its origins, its strengths and its weaknesses, as well as the types of phenomena that have been analysed within this framework. They will be able to formulate and assess different types of syntactic arguments. They will gain experience in engaging in professional discourse through class discussions and oral presentations. They will produce an original term paper that can be subsequently revised for conference presentations and/or a thesis research project.
