COURSE OUTLINE

INSTRUCTOR'S NAME: Amanda POUNDER

OFFICE HOURS: by appointment. All consultations will take place over "Zoom" (link will be provided).

E-MAIL: apounder@ucalgary.ca

DESCRIPTION: This course explores theoretical issues in Morphology, including the nature of form-meaning relations, nature of the linguistic sign, existence and nature of the morphological component, role and nature of the lexicon, interfaces, paradigmatic structure, and typology. Students will be introduced to different theoretical frameworks (including Lexical Morphology, Word-and-Paradigm Morphology, and Distributed Morphology, among others) and become familiar with the fundamental assumptions and analysis procedures of each. Emphasis will be placed on argumentation, critical assessment, and developing an understanding of the history of the subdiscipline. Coursework will involve reading and critical discussion of seminal papers representative of the frameworks introduced as well as of recent work. The final paper will require original research of a language-specific problem, with critical evaluation of the literature, exposition of crucial theoretical issues, and a solution defended both on technical grounds and with respect to the evaluation criteria established in the course.

MODALITY: The default mode of our meeting will be in person, in class, according to the schedule; this is assuming that everyone's safety can be reasonably assured. However, should the university at any point declare a lockdown or move to online modality, we will switch to meeting over "Zoom" at the scheduled time. This will be a permanent move for the duration of the semester.

REQUIRED COURSE MATERIALS :

materials will be provided on D2L

COURSE NOTES:

Deadlines: Critiques are to be handed in the week following seminar presentation. The final paper is officially due 6 days following the end of classes. This deadline is negotiable.

Attendance: As each class represents one week's work, any absence will directly affect participation mark.
