DESCRIPTION

This course focuses on Dante's Divine Comedy, a masterpiece of world literature and a crucial text that lays at the foundation of European culture. The students will learn skills necessary to do research within a humanities literary context, including learning to engage with the vast body of secondary literature surrounding Dante's oeuvre. The course will begin exploring Dante's first work, the Vita Nuova (New Life) as the culmination of Dante's poetic education and the springboard for his poetic journey through the afterlife. We will read selections from the three canticles that form the Comedy: Inferno, Purgatorio and Paradiso, with the goal of understanding Dante's intellectual trajectory and his goals in writing his journey through the underworld and into heaven. The aims of this course are threefold. On the one hand the students will discover the main text of Medieval Italian Literature understand the complex interplay between the characters and Dante the poet/ pilgrim and will become familiarized with selected cantos of the Comedy, in order to identify the main themes of the poem. Secondly, the course will explore the historical context of medieval Italian history, paying particular attention to the politics behind the literary text. Finally, we will learn how to write a research paper on a specific problem of the poem, how to interpret and analyze poetry. In order to do so, the students will analyze a selection of canti and learn the main scholarly interpretations for their selected canti. They then will select a topic for their original research, present their preliminary findings and their selected secondary literature in a presentation, write a short proposal of their thesis statement and necessary bibliography before finally writing the research paper.

OBJECTIVES

This course aims to introduce the students to Dante's Divine Comedy, to place it in the context of Medieval European History and Literature, and to teach students how to do research in a humanities field. The objectives of this course are manifold:

- to explain the context surrounding Dante's Divine Comedy, and familiarize the students with Medieval European History of XIII and XIV c.

Faculty of Arts
School of Languages, Linguistics, Literatures and Cultures

- to explore Dante's sources in the Classical tradition, including Virgil and Ovid
- to provide the students with the tools to recognize Dante's poetic style, starting from the poetic device of "terza rima."
- to recognize Dante's cosmology, and be able to articulate its relationship to a Ptolemaic world-view and medieval astrology.
- to learn how to analyze the crucial theological and philosophical issues at play in the Comedy, including Dante's harmonization of a Christian and Aristotelian Ethics in Inferno, the ethics of time at play in Purgatorio, and his views on salvation in Paradiso.
- to discern and interpret the medieval concept of allegory and how it contributes to Dante's creation of meaning in the Comedy.
- to gain the analytic tools necessary to do research in a humanities field
- to engage with the secondary literature and the main scholarly interpretation of Dante's work
- to express the initial results of their original research, as well as their chosen scholarly articles, in a presentation
- to create and write an original research paper dealing with a relevant issue in the Divine Comedy

OUTCOMES

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- Create short analytic pieces demonstrating their understanding of the principal issues at play in a specific canto of the Divine Comedy or comparing two canti, or two characters from the Comedy.
- Identify key characters in the Comedy and point out their significance in the context of the poem.
- Be able to follow the development of Dante's intellectual trajectory throughout the text and acknowledge Dante's sources in the Classical and biblical tradition.
- Reach an understanding of the philosophical and theological basis of the Comedy and how they inform Dante's structuring of his work.
- Sustain a discussion on the Divine Comedy and its role in Medieval European Literature.
- Create an Abstract with their original thesis statement and an initial bibliography to begin fleshing out their research topic.
- Be able to give a presentation on their research on the Divine Comedy, including talking about the literary qualities of the text, to an audience and be prepared to reply to their questions

Faculty of Arts

School of Languages, Linguistics, Literatures and Cultures

- Produce a longer Research Paper focusing on one canto of the Comedy or on a specific issue in the Comedy as it relates to medieval culture.

REQUIRED COURSE MATERIALS

- 1) Dante. The Divine Comedy, trans. John D. Sinclair (New York: Oxford University Press, 1968 (Reissued October 2010))
- 2) Additional material provided in PDF format on D2L (including several secondary literatures articles on Dante's Comedy)

RECOMMENDED COURSE MATERIALS

Virgil, Aeneid, any edition
Augustine, The city of God, any edition

Any textbook of Italian grammar and syntax.
Any good Italian-English, English-Italian dictionary for advanced students

COURSE NOTES

- The course will consist in class readings, writing and communicative activities: analyses and seminar discussions will be in ITALIAN. Regular attendance is strongly recommended.
- Students will be trained in techniques to perform research within a literary context. Students will learn how to describe and clearly state their research question, they will examine the text, analyze it and mine it for clues and evidence supporting their thesis, find secondary literature to back up their thesis and finally students will articulate the results of their research in a paper.
- Active participation is warmly encouraged. Active participation is defined as coming to class prepared to discuss the reading, and to ask questions about the reading. Students will read the text of the Comedy both in Italian and in translation and peruse the footnotes to clarify hard points. Participation includes being prepared and ready to give active and positive contributions to class interactions. Participation also includes posting on the class blog at least twice in the term and responding to the other students' post at least once. Lack of attendance or of participation will adversely affect your overall performance and will have a negative impact on your final grade. The instructor should be informed of any reasons for prolonged absence.
- Attendance at two co-curricular events during the term will earn students 4 bonus marks in the participation portion of the grade. In general, attendance to all co-curricular events is encouraged in order to have more occasions to practice your language skills and can help make up your absences for the participation portion of the grade.

Important dates:

- In person class meetings will start on Monday January 9th.
- Term break will be the week of February 19th – 25th.
- The two exams (delivered as a D2L quizzes) will take place on February 17th and March 31st.
- The First writing assignment is due in a dedicated D2L folder by February 10th
- The Research Paper proposal will be uploaded to a dedicated D2L folder by March 3rd
- Presentation of the Research Question will take place in-class by March 17th.
- The Final Research Paper will be uploaded to a dedicated D2L folder by April 12th.
- In class meetings will end on Monday, April 10th.

Additional Notes

- Attendance at all tests and examinations is mandatory. The exams will take the form of a D2L quiz. Missed tests, assignments and examinations will be given a grade of F. A student who is absent /unable to take the test in the 48h period for legitimate reasons must inform the instructor immediately and an alternative course of action may be considered.
- Written exams: Both exams will take the form of a D2L quiz. The D2L quiz will be available to the students for a period of 48 hours, starting on class time on February 17th and on March 31st but when the students begin the test, the assessment will be timed to a full class period and a half (115 minutes), to account for technical difficulties. The exams will evaluate students' knowledge of the key characters and themes as well as of the structure of the Comedy. Students will be asked to write a composition and analyze selected passages chosen among those canti of the Comedy read in class.
- Writing Assignment: throughout the term students will write 1 short essay of 500/600 words on a topic of their choice among those covered in class (i.e. the short story needs to include the principal issues at play in a specific canto of the Comedy or comparing two canti, or on a character of the Comedy, etc.). The Writing Assignment will be uploaded to a dedicated D2L folder by February 10th.
- Research Paper Proposal: Students will create an abstract with a research question (thesis statement) and some preliminary bibliography, primary and secondary literature that they intend to use to support their statement. The Research Paper Proposal will be uploaded to a dedicated D2L folder by March 3rd.
- Presentation of the Research: Students will prepare and deliver one 5-minute presentations about the preliminary results of their research on the class material, one short canto from the Comedy or an important character or issue in the text. The Presentation of the Research will be delivered in class by March 17th.
- Final Research Paper: the research paper will present an original argument dealing extensively with a theme discussed in class, using evidence from the text and from the bibliography to prove it (i.e. focusing on one canto of the Comedy or on a specific issue in the Comedy as it relates to medieval culture). The topic will be agreed with the instructor. The paper will have a length of 5/6 pages. The Final Written Paper will be uploaded to a dedicated D2L folder by April 12th.
- There will not be a final examination.
- The Procedure for Course evaluation will be online via a dedicated D2L Link
